ROGERS APPLAUDS REPORTER WHO HAS BIGGEST NEWS BEAT

(Special To The News)
BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 28.—When we honor Mr. Byrd

and all his heroes on his return, don't miff this baby
—he didn't pilot an aero-plane, he made no scientific research, but he was the finest job of newspaper reporting done during our generation.
Two years with one little bunch of newsmen doing practically every day,
yet he made it interesting.
Some of our finest writers couldn't even make the war interesting.

This Russell Owen took an old marmalade dog having pups and we thought it was a birth in our own family. He wrote about a sea gull down there and we were more interested in it than we were a senate investigation. Don't just give the little boy a great big hand, but this to Mr. Ochs of the New York Times, "Give the kid a great big raise."

That fellow could write on the tariff and make you read it.
Incidentally, if you don't know it, he was the best writer on aviation in the world, before he even heard of the South Pole.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Lincoln avenue presented a nice appearance for the conventionists Friday evening. Small pine trees, growing in front lawns were cheerfully lighted with electric lights of all colors.
One tree was lighted entirely with green lights. It was all very beautiful.

Airplanes from Youngstown and other airports were used in the search against those responsible for the state police murder here yesterday. Wide sections of the counties surrounding were quickly covered, but no trace of the killer party could be found.

Roads leading out of the city were also closely patrolled. Motorists driving out of or entering the city were stopped by highway patrolmen. The officers carried guns and took no further chances against meeting the bandits suddenly.

Pedestrians on East Washington street at the South Croton corner observed a mail package on the top of the mail box at that intersection this morning. Some one had apparently left the parcel there for the postman to convey it to the post office.

New printer telegraph system recently established by the state police department in police stations thruout the state, were used yesterday to advantage. The Butler hold-up was reported, and likewise the facts concerning the shooting of the highway patrolmen were also broadcast by this method.

Patrol Ohio Highways In Search For Bandits; Killers Of Local Officer

(International News Service)
CLEVELAND, Dec. 28.—All roads in Northeastern Ohio were under heavily armed police patrol today in an effort to bring to bay the killers who, yesterday, shot and killed Corporal
Brady Paul, 26, of the Pennsylvania
State Police, and wounded Officer
Ernest Moore near New Castle, Pa.

Descriptions of the stolen automobile in which the daring gunmen fled —presumably toward Ohio—were broadcast to police authorities in every city, town and hamlet throughout this portion of the state and the pick of Ohio's police were turned out to guard the roads.
Special pains were taken to patrol that section near Painesville, O., where late yesterday, a farmer, whose name was not learned, reported to authorities that an automobile answering to the description of the one carrying the fleeing men had been seen speeding toward Cleveland on the Cleveland-Buffalo highway.

Youngstown police continued to maintain a tireless patrol of roads and streets about that city, but according to reports this morning, had found no traces of the fugitives. The death car, reports here from Pennsylvania said, headed out of New Cas-

Chicago Detectives Ambush
Trio Of Gunmen And Kill
Them In Gun
Battle

WERE BENT ON VIOLENCE ACT

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Chicago police today were to continue their war to stem the inroads of racketeering interests after a detective squad ambushed a trio of racketeer gunmen and shot them all dead when the hoodlums attempted to capture a legitimate labor union late yesterday.
A cleverly arranged trap with five detectives posted about the offices of the tire workers and repair vulcanizers' union awaited the arrival of the three gunmen.
Realizing that they had been lured into an ambush the trio, all of whom have criminal records, opened fire in a desperate attempt to shoot their way out of the union offices.
Backing into a corner, the three men exchanged a murderous fusillade with the five detectives.
William Wilson, notorious racketeer was the first to empty his gun. His pleadings for mercy were cut short by a volley which tumbled his body to the floor. William (Humpy) Quantump down on top of him, and a few seconds later the body of John Ryan, known as a booze gangster, fell.

Herewith is a picture of J. C. Allen, who has been appointed assistant general superintendent of the New Castle Works, Carnegie Steel Com-

passed away recently.

Mr. Allen has come up through the ranks to his present position, starting as a blue print boy in the office of the Chief Mechanic Engineer, later becoming a draughtsman, still later assistant chief mechanical engineer, and since 1916 has been chief me-

He is succeeded by W. H. Williams who has been his assistant since 1916.

Prof. and Mrs. L. H. Conway and son Markham of Sewickley were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George W.
Conway of Englewood avenue on Friday.
Behind the president's temporary office, eight painters had attacked
one large room in a body, and this morning the cabinet table was in place, around it the special chairs,
awaiting the next assembly of that august body.
Outside, in the executive avenue, a detail of police remained to regulate traffic and keep back the crowds when the passengers from the White House to the state and war department. In this latter connection, the police are most necessary as the street is narrow and heavy with traffic. Also, each time thus far the president has walked down the White House steps, across the street and up the long flight leading to the side entrance of the war

Executive Office In Washington Is Running Smoothly

Large Staff Of Assistants
Quartered In New

TWENTY ROOMS ARE PUT INTO USE

Plans For Restoring Execu-

By GEORGE E. DURNO
(International News Service Staff)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—President Hoover and his large staff of assistants were all moved in along with the secretary of state and the secretary of war today, and the hum of business was beginning again just as it was before the Christmas eve fire that gutted the west wing of the White House where the executive offices are maintained.

Twenty rooms in the east corridor of the state and war department were teeming with activity as the now familiar secretariat dispatched innumerable delayed orders to a staff of overworked stenographers, clerks and messengers. Roped-off staircases and corridors kept out the curious; a details of White House police were kept busy.

Hoover in Charge.
From a central and sumptuously furnished office, once occupied by secretaries of the navy and later by General John J. Pershing, the whole business was directed by the president himself. In highly efficient manner, directed by Lawrence Richey, a Hoover secretary, the whole transfer—entailing first the moving out of a large section of the army general staff and the force of an assistant secretary of state—had been accomplished in a little over a day and a half.

Thanks to the efficiency of the telephone company, up at the north end of the restricted corridor the big double switchboard of the White House, with its multitude of private connections, was functioning flawlessly. Even in the press room, six new booths housed the phones that keep the news associations in touch with the president's activities.

Cabinet Room Fixed.
Behind the president's temporary
office, eight painters had attacked
one large room in a body, and this morning the cabinet table was in
place, around it the special chairs,
awaiting the next assembly of that

Car Taken Here By Bandits Was Special Design

HORTON TELLS HOW HIS CAR WAS TAKEN

Man, Woman And Child In Bandit Car He Relates
To News

According to Ray B. Horton, whose car was taken by the bandit pair when he and Miss Elsie Nickum were held up at the point of a gun on Adams street, little difficulty should be had in tracing the car as there was not another like it in this section.
The car stolen from Horton was a Chrysler roadster, with a special paint job, the body of the car being painted with aluminum paint, a blue stripe running around the middle. Above the line it was painted black. It was equipped with wire wheels, the spokes being painted blue.

Hailed By Bandits.
They first sighted the bandit's car just as they were driving onto the Butler road from the Blair Strip Steel Co., where both are employed. They pulled out onto the road ahead of the car and did not pay any particular attention to the machine, as it was a Chevrolet coach of a common type.
At that time, the driver of the car yelled something at them, but Horton, feeling that probably they just wanted to inquire a direction, kept on going.

He turned up Adams street to take Miss Nickum to her home and had proceeded but a short distance when the car pulled in alongside them, the driver honking his horn repeatedly.
He glanced out and at first sight of the car thought perhaps they had been in an accident as the glass in the window was shattered. He says that the car pulled ahead of them in the road and the driver seemed to sway from one side of the road to another. When he finally stopped, the two cars were practically abreast, the bandit car in the middle of the road.

"I Want Your Car."
The man then stepped out and said,
"Hey, Buddy, I want your car." Horton says that he replied, "Just what do you mean?"
The man then repeated, "Just what

ENTIRE DISTRICT BEING SEARCHED BY OFFICERS FOR KILLERS OF PAUL

Western Pennsylvania And Eastern Ohio Are Hunted For Man And Woman Who Shot Down State Patrolmen
On Butler Road Friday Afternoon

Although a day has passed since the slaying of Brady
Paul, corporal, and wounding of Ernest Moore, private, Pennsylvania highway patrol Friday by a male and woman bandit near Baldwin hill, New Castle-Butler highway the slayers remain uncaptured.

A relentless and eager vigil was maintained by State Police and Pennsylvania highway patrolmen throughout the night on all Lawrence county roads. State authorities also maintained an alert watch on all other roads in Western Pennsylvania; and Ohio police kept a vigil throughout eastern Ohio.

Paul was fatally wounded and Moore sustained two slight wounds when they attempted to search an automobile containing a man and woman who were suspected of robbing the P. H. Butler store at Butler, yesterday morning. When they attempted the search they did not know they were the right parties.

Shooting Occurs
Corporal Paul received a report of the robbery and with Moore started out the New Castle-Butler highway to investigate any car in which they suspected might be the persons wanted. Near Baldwin hill they espied a Chevrolet and when they stopped the car, the fatal shooting occurred.
There was at least one eye witness to the shooting and according to a version he has given to the authorities Private Moore was in front of the automobile and Corporal Paul behind. This witness accounts for only a man, woman and a young child, who might be either a boy or girl, in the car.

According to the report from Butler where the store was robbed, the hold-up was perpetrated by two men and a woman. If this be accurate one of the men may have left the Chevrolet in Butler or before the shooting occurred as the witness is accredited with the following version:
The woman was shooting at Paul

STATE AGENCIES JOINED IN HUNT

New Castle was virtually an armed camp Friday night, with sentries posted at every road leading in and out of the city, stopping automobiles.
State policemen, armed with high power rifles and pistols, loaded for instant action, were on duty in the hope that the bandit car containing the slayers of Corporal Brady Paul might attempt to get in or out of the city.

When the word was flashed over the state wires, reporting the death of Corporal Brady Paul and the wounding of Private Ernest Moore, both state police and state highway patrol officials were galvanized into action. Orders were issued at Greensburg and Butler to detail every available man to New Castle and in a short time automobiles and motor cycles roared into the city with troopers.

Two Officers Here.
Captain Miller of the State Highway Patrol came over to take personal command of the hunt for the slayers of one of his best men, while for the State Police, Lieutenant Boett-ner, took command. The two forces joined hands and worked from the sub-station in the Colonial Hotel.
The officers were detailed in pairs, two working at the intersection of state and Grant streets at the foot of the Youngstown hill, others work-

City Policemen Aid State Men In Bandit Hunt

Every Agency Of City Department Used In Effort To Bring Slaying To Justice

SEVERAL CITIZENS VOLUNTEER AUTOS

City police and several private citizens yesterday co-operated in every possible manner when Corporal Brady Paul was fatally shot and Private Moore wounded on the Butler-New Castle road.

Sergeant Steiner at the police station got the call about noon.

Bill Jolly who had called at city hall was present and he took Captain Elder to the murder scene in quest of the slayers.

Patrolman Harper and others started for the scene and combed the vicinity.

Sergeant Steiner sounded the alarm to Youngstown and other towns in this vicinity.

County Detective Fleming and a squad combed different sections and all roads were filled with police.

Youngstown police covered all the roads and one car came all the way to New Castle in quest of the robbers.

One car containing city police had a tire punctured near Mt. Jackson, Jim Quinn who drives for the Smeal bus line was operating an auto toward this city. He was advised of the intensive search.

"Use my car," he said and some of the police accepted his offer and the police car of the city was restored to order and it resumed the search.

The first notice from Butler came from the telegraph "ticker" which detailed that a store had been robbed by two men and a woman.

It was this case that Paul and Moore started on.

After the gun battle news was sent to Troop D, Butler and the ticker broadcast an account of the shooting and it was sent all over the country.

TRUCK DRIVER SEES SHOOTING

Baldwin place and near the Williams shrubbery and tree place.

As Mr. Book was turning the curve in the road, approximately a quarter of a mile from the exact spot of the shooting started.

Saw Shooting From Distance
His statement to a representative of The News follows:

"I first heard shots. As I came around onto the straight stretch, I saw a car and an officer to the front and to the rear. It all happened in an instant. There were more shots and the officers dropped. I was at least two city blocks away. As the officers dropped, the car started on."

"The officer to the rear of the car was Officer Brady Paul. The officer in the front was Officer Ernest Moore."

"I was unable to determine the number or kind of occupants of the car."

"I was unable to tell whether the officers fired their guns or not."

"When I reached the actual scene of the shooting, the officers were up and walking around."

"As I was preparing to get the men into New Castle, another car came along and I stopped it."

Walks To Truck
"Officer Paul walked to my truck and got up into the seat himself. Officer Moore walked to the other car and we started for New Castle."

"When Officer Paul first got into the truck, he talked some, his first statement to me being, 'get me into town quick. I'm shot up.'"

"As we progressed toward the city, I noticed that he talked less and less and near the end of the trip, he said nothing."

"On reaching town, I jumped out and told them to get an ambulance quick. They did and Paul and Moore were taken to the hospital in it."

"Moore was apparently quite dazed and although he walked to the other car, the owner and driver of which I do not know, I helped put him in."

"I saw the motorcycle and side car of the officers at the scene of the shooting."

The proper measure of a man is his pride. The great can be humble, but the smaller a man is the more pride he needs to hold up his chin.

son Memorial hospital and had Moore taken there.

Mrs. Crowl hurried to the bedside of Paul.

She took his hand—his left, which he could use.

"Do you know me, Paul?" asked Mrs. Crowl tenderly.

"Yes, that's you, Mollie," replied Paul as the boys were accustomed to call her by her first name. "I'm glad you came so someone would be here who knows me," said Paul. He was suffering intensely.

"I'm going to die, Mollie," said Paul as he pressed his stomach with his right hand. A bullet had torn its way through his stomach.

"No you're not Paul," replied Mrs. Crowl in an effort to comfort the young patrolman.

"Yes I am. I feel it here," said Paul as he pressed his hand on his stomach again.

And then gazing at Mrs. Crowl as tears crept to her eyes, he said:

"Tell the boys I did my duty. I did the best I could. I hope they get them!"

Not so long ago Corporal Paul had a photograph taken and after breakfast Friday morning he met Mrs. Crowl in the hotel and handed her one of his photographs for her group.

"Here's a photograph. You'll have this after I'm gone," the corporal remarked jocularly.

It was not long after until he received the news of the robbery and with Moore started on the Butler highway.

Their only information was that there had been a robbery and it was believed the parties might come this way.

They were stopping cars and finally along came the death car with its tigerish woman and male accomplice.

Corporal Paul's comrades will pay tribute to him when he is laid to rest at Hickory, Washington county, Pa. As soon as he passed away a State Highway patrolman stood guard and a squad of comrades will escort his body to Hickory where every State Patrolman in Pennsylvania will gather for the funeral. There will be 200 there.

Captain D. E. Miller, commanding officer of the troop to which Paul was affiliated has taken charge of arrangements here. Comrades of Paul prepared the uniform in which he will be laid away. As they prepared his clothing last night and polished his equipment they were dry-eyed but grim. They did not talk much but the glint from their eyes and the snap of their feet indicated they would be the avengers.

it had been expected that Colonel Lindbergh would pass over Bellefonte by one o'clock yesterday afternoon but more than twenty-one hours had passed this morning with the famous flying duo still untraced.

No Alarm Felt.
VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Dec. 28.—Reports from Columbus, Bellefonte and Pittsburgh today that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh had not arrived en route to the coast, did not alarm officials at the Curtiss Field where the Lindberghs took off yesterday.

Lindbergh told traffic managers of the field he intended to make a stop somewhere between New York and Columbus, but did not name the place. He said he planned spending the week-end with friends.

The flier and his wife are using a Falcon open cockpit biplane.

The purpose of the trip is to make an inspection of the T-A-T system. The inspection will start in Columbus early next week and Lindbergh will fly the route to Los Angeles.

SHAPE AND VELOCITY OF MOON'S ECLIPSE SHADOW
By Arthur DeV. Carpenter.

Of course the shadow observed during an eclipse of the sun is that of the moon, and is cone-shaped. Should the moon be sufficiently distant from the earth at the time it passes in front of the sun, its remoteness would cause the moon's shadow to come to a point before it had reached the earth, and then the eclipse would be annular.

The lunar shadow reaching the earth sweeps along rapidly from west to east because of the velocity of the moon eastward in its orbit. The velocity of the shadow would be still greater, were it not that the earth also rotates rapidly in that same direction.

The TOWN DOCTOR

(The Doctor of Towns)

Says:

THERE'S A SIGN AT YOUR ELBOW

There is a sign at every railroad crossing reading, "Stop! Look! and Listen!" yet every day somebody gets knocked into eternity by a locomotive. Everywhere, thinking highway commissioners warn unthinking motorists to "drive with discretion," "don't pass on a hill," "slow down," and all those things; still, a newspaper without a list of automobile fatalities is the exception rather than the rule.

As people still walk and drive blindly in front of speeding twenty-ton locomotives, and as darn fools under steering wheels still kill themselves and endanger the lives of law-obeying citizens, just so do some communities remain sound asleep to their opportunities, constantly slipping more and more into the valley of "what used to be," while other live, wide-awake towns "take telling," shake off their shrouds of lethargy and get going to a bigger, brighter, and better day.

What do you want in New Castle? What does New Castle need to make it what you would like it to be?

Whatever you want—whatever New Castle needs, you can have it if you want it bad enough and will "take telling" to get it.

If it's factories you want, get "right" yourself, make New Castle "right" by making it READY for factories, and the result will BE factories. If it's home builders you want, the same is true.

There are more manufacturers seeking locations for new factories than there are towns ready and right for factories. There are thousands more people in the market for, and just waiting to get "sold" on, new home locations, than there are communities which can rightfully lay claim to being even semi-qualified for ideal residence.

There is a sign at your elbow—both elbows. That sign is a sign of the times, telling you that never in your life has New Castle had the opportunities that it has today. Everywhere you turn there is proof of it. Every place you go you can see it if you LOOK, and hear it if you LISTEN.

Decide on what New Castle wants, find out what it needs, KNOW what it has, what it lacks, where it is strong and where it is weak. Don't guess—KNOW. Then get going to go get it.

CORPORAL PAUL FINE OFFICER

Officer Had Been On Force For Several Years

The death of Brady Paul is a matter of general regret to everybody, but to one girl in the state it is tragedy. She and Brady Paul were sweethearts, and were to be married within a short time. He had served several years in the State Highway Patrol, had served faithfully and efficiently but with his impending marriage he had felt that perhaps he could do better by leaving the service and engaging in another line of work. The plans which he and his intended bride had worked out were ruthlessly ended when the bullets of a bandit cut him down in the prime of life.

Brady Paul was a fearless officer, fearless almost to the point of recklessness at times. He never swerved from the path of duty even though such a course led him into the gravest danger. Several years ago he attacked a gang of holdup men single handedly, was overpowered by them and kidnapped. By a ruse he succeeded in escaping from the car in which he was being kidnapped and probably saved his life at that time.

He had made himself popular in and about New Castle through his efficient work. He treated everybody the same, enforced the highway laws, but did it in a way that left no sting with the person involved. He was the type of officer who reflects credit upon a department and his death came as the result of pursuing the duties to which he was sworn.

Members of the New Castle Auto Dealers association discussed possibilities of holding an auto show here during the early part of 1930, at their luncheon held in the Elks club Friday at noon.

No definite plans were discussed but a majority of the members were in favor of holding such an event and the matter will be further discussed at their next meeting.

ing the Butler road and still others working the Wampum road. Over on the Ohio side of the line, Youngstown officers patrolled the roads leading to Hillsville, Besemer and Poland and to New Castle.

As each automobile entered or left New Castle, it was stopped and the men on duty inspected the occupants. There was no conversation, merely a curt order to move on after the inspection.

Grim jawed and determined, the troopers were out to avenge the death of their comrade and had the killers been apprehended last night, it might have gone rather hard with them.

No Stone Returned.
No stone will be left unturned by the state in running down the bandits. The tradition of the Pennsylvania State Constabulary is akin to that of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, "they always get their man."

In some cases it has taken several years but success has usually crowned their efforts. An example of this was seen when a trooper was killed near Chambersburg, Pa. It took months to locate the slayer but he was finally laid by the heels. The same vigorous, intensive search will be conducted for the Butler road bandits.

Ohio officers are co-operating in the man hunt, and officials of West Virginia, Maryland, New York and Maine have descriptions of the car and the killers.

Citizens living in vicinity of the various places where the guards were stationed last night provided coffee for the troopers, to combat the effects of the cold, damp night.

building, a sizeable crowd has been on hand.

In the meantime, plans for restoring the executive offices are proceeding apace. Secretary Richey has decided that while the job is being done, he might as well take advantage of the situation and put in all the needed improvements he failed to get last spring. These will include a cooling and ventilating system similar to those which keep theatres cool in summertime; complete fire-proofing and installation of a sprinkler system, and a marble floor throughout the big lobby. Instead of half-and-half as at present.

It is estimated, including everything, the job will run between $80,000 and $100,000. Already preliminary work is under way.

"Worthless" Lease Brings Oil Riches

(International News Service)

WICHITA, Kans., Dec. 28.—Flowing gold—oil, has brought riches to Harry M. Loss virtually overnight.

The American Legion recently was asked by an official of the Peerless Oil company of Fort Worth to aid in locating Loss thought to be in Wichita, Kan. The legion got in touch with Loss and he immediately called the official of the oil concern and was told that oil had been brought in on land which he holds a lease.

Mr. Loss's present oil lease holdings include 17,000 acres in Terrell county, in the southwestern part of Texas. The 17,000 acres are part of the original Jim Hogg estate, procured in 1924 on a 10-year basis. The land was considered worthless and the lease only cost Loss $500. Later Loss felt he had made a bad bargain and sold the lease on 1,400 acres for 10 cents an acre. It was in this tract of land that the Peerless company "hit" oil.

Loss also retained his royalty interests on the remaining 17,000 acres. He has received many offers for his holdings. It was reported that one offer would give Loss $75 an acre for his entire holdings.

W. B. A. CELEBRATES AT CHRISTMAS PARTY

The W. B. A. No. 98 held their regular meeting in the K. of P. hall last evening and followed the business session with a Christmas party for the review and the juniors with about 150 present. ### ANOTHER NEW CASTLE ACHIEVEMENT

Efficiency and completeness with which all of the details of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association convention were handled by New Castle, in the sessions that were closed last night, is another testimonial to the fact that new Castle is "the convention city of Western Pennsylvania."

There are few cities in the state that can take care of a convention the size of the educational association gathering let alone provide for it as was done in New Castle. Delegates who were here, departed with a fine opinion of the manner in which the affair was conducted.

The immense banquet event on Friday at noon was a new feature for state conventions, and it was a matter of no little commendation on the part of scores of the delegates.

All in all, everyone who had anything to do with the local arrangements for the convention, from general chairman, Dr. C. C. Green, down to the members of all of the committees can feel that a big task has been well done.

It's really a matter for self congratulation on the part of the folks of New Castle!

NEED FIRE PROOF OFFICES AT WHITE HOUSE

On reading of the fire which virtually destroyed the executive offices of the president one is thankful that the historic white house itself was spared.

What has been affected is the executive offices building which President Roosevelt persuaded congress to erect in 1903. The new building, only one story high, with a basement, was connected with the white house by a still lower structure something in the nature of an enclosed corridor. Stanford White designed the structure, and his thought was to make it conform to the dignity of the president's home. It was purposely made low in order not to detract from the white house itself. The architect's task was greatly facilitated by the discovery of the original plans of Captain James Hoban, the designer of the first Washington residence of the chief magistrate of the nation. That was the first public building erected in Washington, and the fact that it holds its own amid the architecture of the capital city is a tribute to the taste and artistry of its designer.

The next thought in connection with the fire in the executive offices is that the building which will have to take its place should be made thoroughly fireproof. It was only by the most energetic efforts that important papers were saved from the flames. That should not be the case in the official headquarters of the president of a great and rich nation. One explanation may be that the addition was only intended to be temporary. Whether this be true or not, the opportunity now presents itself for erecting a building that will be worthy of its purpose.

The white house itself symbolizes the dignity of the nation. It has a simplicity about it that appeals to all. It has recently been reconditioned, and is perhaps as fireproof as possible in the circumstances, but the fire in the office building will be a lesson and a reminder of our duty toward the main structure.

DISCREDITING MOON FARMING

To question confidence in the almanac when it comes to planting is still regarded as almost sacrilege by many an old-fashioned farmer. Unless the "sign" is right, he is sure that it will be useless for him to attempt to get a crop.

The federal department of agriculture has issued an almanac for farmers, and this almanac contains a somewhat serious attack on the ideas of persons who adhere to the moon lore for farming and gardening. This almanac will have the approval of the modern farmer who has adopted businesslike methods in his farming operations.

"Don't plant by the moon," the almanac says, "but get the best seed and prepare the seed bed, then plant when soil and moisture conditions are right." Good sense, certainly, but how are you going to convince the man who has a moon almanac hanging in the kitchen?

The department of agriculture insists that the preparation of the seed bed and planting at a time when conditions of heat and moisture are the most favorable, with proper cultivation, will insure good crops, regardless of what the moon almanac may say. Students in agricultural schools and some farmers may believe that, but it is too much to expect that many farmers will not continue skeptical in spite of the assurance of the experts.

A success is a man who picked out the right kind of habits.

The Chicago University investigator who declares that the Apostle Paul had a stenographer who took his epistles in shorthand may discover on further examination that they were written on a typewriter.

The statement that a London preacher, who refuses to perform the marriage ceremony for a bride with powdered face and painted lips, has not performed a ceremony for several weeks would seem to illustrate cause and effect.

The Way OF THE World

By GROVE PATTERSON

BALANCED MIND DIET

There is a bit of a war on as to what school children should read. A Columbia university expert declares nursery rhymes and fairy tales must go. Stories of animals with human qualities are also out, and in their place are to be tales of boys who eat just what is good for them and grow up into perfect young men. Jack the Giant Killer and the Little Red Hen are to be driven out of the home if this expert has his way.

Why be so drastic? There is too much dieting in the world—physical and mental. Your children need balanced rations in food for their bodies; they need balanced rations in food for their minds. Not all of this and not all of that—but some of this and that will be good for them.

COLLEGE OVERALLS

The girls in an Illinois college having criticized the boys for not dressing with taste, the boys vote to wear overalls. These college young men announce that "until the authors of this ignoble decision make known their recantation we, the men of Shurtleff college, consider it necessary to wear overalls or other social handicaps as we may prove that clothes do not make the man."

Colleges are getting larger and funnier. Education, if any, must grow in queer soil.

UNITY-COMPROMISE

Much talk about unity, about churches getting together, about tolerance. Compromise is a big word and an important one. The trouble with Christian unity, or the lack of it, has been the scarcity of the spirit of compromise. Few of us like compromise. Our idea is rather to get what we want and let the other fellow like it if he can. There can be no unity without a great deal of compromise. And that doesn't mean that we are to agree only on minor details. We must agree on things that are hard to agree on. We must be willing to be hurt. It has been said in this column before that it is easy to be a good sport in something that we don't care about.

Compromise may mean a rearrangement of one's prejudices in so violent a manner as to be exceedingly painful.

EXPECTING

Optimists tell us to expect much, and we will get it. Even better advice is to waste little time in expecting. Do as well as you can, and take what you get.

Adopt, Adapt, Improve.
Three Good New Year Words.
A Plan For Gandhi.
Lindbergh Has An Estate.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1929, King Features Syn., Inc.)

Adopt, Adapt, Improve.
Those three words, recommended by the Prince of Wales to his fellow countrymen, might well be ADOPTED, ADAPTED AND IMPROVED in this country.

The young Prince, one of the most useful, hard working citizens of Great Britain, said to British industrialists: "We Britons think we are very efficient, and we are at the head of the world in lots of things, but to keep in the van we must be conscious of that very valuable thing—the knowledge that we learn something new every day. To put in three words: We must learn to adopt, to adapt, and to improve."

We Americans think we are very efficient. In fact, we are absolutely sure of it. But we do not always "adopt, adapt, improve."

For instance, railroad managers of the United States stood looking, doing nothing, while automobiles, omnibuses and trucks took away some of their most profitable business.

They woke up late to that situation, and they are not thoroughly awake yet.

And to nearby suburban points they drag gigantic heavy "local trains," stopping and starting at every station, wasting money, men, machinery, rails.

They could just as well send out in rapid succession light cars driven by gas engines, each one an express, each going without stop to its own station and no farther. A little ADOPTING, ADAPTING AND IMPROVING would arrange that.

The late President Ripley, of the Santa Fe, brilliant railroad man, chose for his motto three very important words: "ORGANIZE, DEPUTIZE, SUPERVIZE."

Three good words. The Prince of Wales' three words are also needed, even in this super-efficient land.

A big silver pool in China has been "unloading" heavy stocks of silver metal and silver is cheaper today than it has been in 25 years.

India-China may adopt the gold standard, because France wants it. If that should happen and the people of India should put into the metal market, for any reason, the gigantic hoards of silver ornaments and silver metal that the Hindus possess, the price of silver would gripe the shade of W. J. Bryan.

If Gandhi, apostle of freedom for India, should tell his millions of followers to exchange their silver for gold, he would disturb his British overlords considerably and develop in them a politician that would amaze him. He can't do it by his plan of reviving the hand loom to compete with British machinery.

St. Louis wants to erect a statue to Lindbergh. It is unnecessary. It is too soon, and who in the country could make it good enough, except MacMonnies, and he, for the time, has given up sculpture.

Lindbergh possesses now a monument sufficient—a picture in every American mind of a youth sitting in a small box, with wings, leaving New York and crossing the ocean from New York to Paris.

When you have that kind of monument, you don't need anything of marble or bronze.

A British judge suggests copying, for English prisons, an experiment made in Germany. Prisoners that work well, behave themselves, show "some desire to become good citizens," shall have special privileges.

Their cells will remain lighted until 9:30 p. m., they will share in prison management, and in two weeks have a year to visit friends and keep in touch with the world outside.

Rebellion in American prisons proves that mere discipline is not enough. Perhaps showing a real interest in criminals, realizing how narrow the line separates respectability from crime, would help.

"But for the grace of God, there I sit," anyone of us might say, seeing a convict in his cell.

Advertising means selling goods, which means making more goods necessary. And that means labor. Therefore, advertising is vitally important to industry, finance and business.

Young Mr. L. Ames Brown, with the snowplow jaw, says that Lord and Thomas and Logan, the firm of which he is president, has placed $40,000,000 worth of advertising this year.

That's good news for business.

Mr. Brown thinks his firm has done more advertising this year than any other. This column will be glad to hear from other agencies, Ayer & Son, J. Walter Thompson, Barton, Durstine & Osborne, or any other that thinks Mr. Brown is mistaken.

LAWRENCE CASTLE HAS A DREAM Castle Hills, Pa., December 26, 1929.

Mr. Fred L. Reitz, President of New Castle News, New Castle, Pa.

My Dear Fred:—

On Christmas Eve your many little grandson came to our door and was received by Matilda and delivered to us a beautiful basket of fruits and candies from five different states. A wonderful collection of dainties. I was much impressed by the little boy who wished Matilda and I a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year. It makes us recall the scripture verse, "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

After consuming the dainties and other things provided for us for Christmas day I had a wonderful dream. I dreamed the ship canal was in operation and Harry Alexander was the revenue officer instead of the freight agent of the Pennsylvania railroad. The freight station was shut down and large vessels were docking in the vicinity of the freight house of the Pennsylvania railroad. I was invited to make a trip on one of the vessels that traversed through a country as far as Pymatung

However they should be very careful not to accentuate any phase of physical beauty while appearing before the judge, as this may prejudice him against their case.

Luther Lotteroom was born on this day, and will be remembered as the gent who spreads himself out in the trolley car so as to occupy a space equivalent to three seats.

It May Not Make Much If Any Difference To Some People What You Do, But It May Make A Hulva Difference To You, Comrade.

You can make up your mind on one thing and that is if some one gave you a twenty dollar gold piece for Christmas he meant it, as he could have given you a ten, five or even $2.50 and you would have probably been pleased just as much.

If some birds told what they got for Christmas the police would get after 'em.

Two married ladies and a bride-to-be were talking to each other a few days ago and one of the married ones said, "We could tell this bride-to-be a lot." And we think they could.

If there is anything that interferes with the business you make your living at give up your business.

An alleged authority claims that less than one-half of the six hundred million dollars accumulated in Christmas savings funds was spent for gifts. Now some authority ought to tell how much of it was charged when bought.

Statistics show that every city averages 800 dogs per 1000 inhabitants. Scan the advertisements and you will soon see how many of these mounds go A. W. O. L. every day. The amount of money that is offered for their return is simply amazing. Put 12 and 2 together and you can readily see that the dude who invented this HOME-LESS HECTOR cart is nobody's push-over. All that any go-getter has to do is strap a few pieces of bolonite to this buggy and start out. In less time than it takes him to jerk off his mittens he'll have a full house. All that's necessary then is to buy an afternoon paper and make deliveries. One man in Rag Weed, South Dakota, made so much money in one month that he hasn't been heard of since.

One thing people will hesitate buying for us and that is neckties. We do not have many funeral ties.

Evils of Politics In Schools Attacked In McAndrew Case

Court Decision In Chicago Suit Involving Superintendent Welcomed As Check On School Board

Newspapers laud the court decision in Chicago in favor of William McAndrew, Superintendent of Schools, who was ousted by the Board of Education on charges now thrown out by the court. McAndrew was accused of insubordination and use of textbooks which were alleged to present pro-British propaganda.

"Dr. McAndrew did not need this formal vindication," in the opinion of the CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. "He stood higher, perhaps, in the esteem of the sincere men and women of Chicago after his illegal dismissal at the hands of the school board than he did before. But the court's rebuke of the school board removes the merits of the tragic incident beyond all contention and exposes beyond reproach the motives." Dr. McAndrew was the one obstacle to the invasion of the school treasury by the machine. Furthermore, he was an impassable obstacle. So long as Dr. McAndrew remained in charge of the educational system, the school funds would be administered properly. "Immediately after the expulsion of the distinguished superintendent, the great raid upon the schools was started. Appointments to the educational and administrative departments were dictated by precinct captains. Capable and experienced members of the school system were dismissed to make room for election hustlers."

The NEW YORK SUN remarks that "the absurdity of the charges against William McAndrew made no court ruling necessary," and "the decision of the Illinois Superior Court," simply confirmed "the opinion always held by disinterested observers." "Previously a man who had been the chief witness against the Superintendent confessed that he did not know what he was talking about and apologized to a prominent historian whose textbook had been used as the basis of the political campaign." "As is usual when politicians play football with a school system, the public is left holding the bag. Chicago taxpayers have lost the services of perhaps the ablest Superintendent of Schools that ever functioned in that city. The taxpayers can't sue for damages, and McAndrew probably wouldn't care to sue for any money. Thus satisfaction with the outcome of the case is restricted to a very small group."

"As a result of that decision," according to the TERRE HAUTE STAR, "the former official is in position to sue the city for back pay amounting to about $6,000, but he has announced that no such action will be taken, vindication being the sole aim in pressing the case. The court's ruling, of course, was nothing but a legal formality. The people of Chicago and the country generally have known all along that McAndrew was not guilty of the charges. The ROCKFORD STAR states that it is "happy to witness a good man's vindication," recalling that "there was a spirited battle over the ouster of the educator, who had been brought from New York City to direct the Chicago school system," but that he was removed "under a barrage of trumped-up charges. Since his removal," continues the Star, "Mr. McAndrew has been endeavoring to be vindicated. Court action gives him this long-sought satisfaction. The Superior Court did not think it pertinent to examine the alleged pro-British textbooks which were removed by the Superintendent from office, and squashed all records of the disgraceful affair."

"Mr. McAndrew, having come in from a distant part of the country, and naturally being ignorant of the Chicago way of doing things in schools and politics," says the KANSAS CITY TIMES, "made his initial blunder by checking the school graft which local politicians had practiced for years. That was unpardonable, but, obviously, the superintendent could not be brought to trial on that kind of issue. There must be a real issue. It was found in the insubordination and pro-British charges. Mr. McAndrew now, says through his attorney, that he will not bring suit. * * * It will be worth the price if it helps to emphasize the folly and disaster of political meddling."

Trains Speeding Delegates Home

Philadelphia Special Carries 300 On Return Trip To Eastern Points

An 11-car special, hauling eight sleepers, one parlor car and two day coaches, departed from the Pennsylvania station last night at 10:30 carrying the majority of eastern Pennsylvania's delegation to the two-day sessions of the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Williamsport, Easton folk and others from that section of the state were aboard the special, whose different cars were to be shifted for different eastern connections at Pittsburgh.

Pennsylvania officials estimated that 300 were making the return trip, some 250 having been brought to the city on the same train Thursday morning.

Regular trains, both Pittsburgh and Erie bound, were getting their share of the travel this morning. By noon the most of the visitors were homeward bound.

Many departed from the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie depot for Pittsburgh on morning trains today.

ENTIRE DISTRICT BEING SEARCHED BY OFFICERS FOR KILLERS OF PAUL

who was behind the car and the man was shooting at Moore, who was in front of the car. Paul was shot and fell on the road but he got up and dragged himself behind a pole. He raised his right arm to fire but the gun didn't go off.

Look Officer's Gun.

Moore, in front of the car, was the target for the man. One of the bullets which wounded him inflicted a scalp wound which knocked him down and he lay on his stomach. The man and woman rolled Moore over and took his gun after which they got into their automobile and sped toward New Castle.

According to Moore there were two men, a woman and a child in the bandit car when it was stopped by the officers, along the Butler road. A man and woman were in the front seat, and a man was in the rear seat, he says. He believes that the bullet holes in the front of the car were made by Corporal Paul, when he fired. Moore also believes that the man in the back seat was the one that fired at him. It is apparent that one man must have left the car somewhere before this city was reached, if the officer was not mistaken, as there was only one man and one woman, and a child in the car, when it reached New Castle.

The man who witnessed the shooting when the duel started was within 200 feet of the battle. When the firing started he backed his truck away 200 feet and waited for the hostilities to cease. When the man and woman fled in the Chevrolet he drove to the scene, put Paul on the seat of his truck and drove to this city where Paul was rushed to the Jameson Memorial hospital.

Meantime another autoist who had come to the scene of the shooting picked up Moore and hurried him to the state highway patrol barracks, Colonial hotel, this city. This car, beat the truck carrying Paul. Moore, still partly dazed, ran into the hotel and shouted: "I'm shot, I'm shot." John Crowl, proprietor, was present. He talked with Moore to find out actually what happened. Mr. Crowl called for doctors and then had Moore taken also to the Jameson Memorial hospital and then went there where he sat alongside the dying Paul.

Paul was shot three times, according to Coroner J. P. Caldwell at whose direction a post mortem was held at the Jameson Memorial hospital. One of the bullets entered Paul's left arm near the elbow, passing entirely through the calf of the left leg, a short distance below the knee. Another bullet entered the abdomen and penetrated the liver and one kidney. It was hemorrhage from this wound that caused death. Two of the bullets were recovered. One was found inside the clothing and the other was just underneath the skin in the back.

Bandits Come to City.

Meanwhile the Chevrolet which contained the man, woman and the child sped toward New Castle. They travelled for a block through Adams street and pulled in front of a Chrysler 65, 1929 license Pa. 154-142, driven by Ray Horton, who was taking Miss Elsie Nickum to her home. They are employed at the Blair Strip Steel company.

The bandit pointed a gun at Horton and ordered him from the Chrysler. As he stepped out the Chrysler also pointed a gun at him then robbed him of an identification case, containing cards and about nine dollars in money. They then transferred some packages, evidently loot from the Butler car, to the Chevrolet to the Chrysler, missed some of their loot on the seat.

One Man Missing.

At the time the Chrysler was taken from Horton in Adams street, a man, woman and small child had been in the Chevrolet, 1929 license Ohio C74-435. At the time the store was looted in Butler it is reported two men and a woman perpetrated it. If this be accurate the second man must have left the other man and woman some place between Butler and the shooting.

After the car was taken from Horton it headed south over Adams street and from this point all trace has been lost. One rumor said a Chrysler was seen in Mahoning avenue, another rumor said a Chrysler sped by Petersburg at 12:30 p. m. and a third rumor had a Chrysler whirling past Energy yesterday afternoon. But the police have no definite trace of the car and are maintaining their blockade on all roads.

Peculiar Car

Search for the Chrysler is under way. It is possible that it may be hidden or ditched on some lonely by-road or garaged in some private garage and the bandits have stolen another car. The description of the Chrysler in which they fled follows: Chrysler 65, sport model, Pa. license 1929, number 154-142, aluminum body, blue wire wheels, black hood and under, kahki top. Two spares, it is said are attached to the sides of the car.

Last night citizens communicated with County Commissioners McCullough and Elder and they agreed to offer a reward of $1,000, for the arrest and conviction of the slayers. It is believed that this reward will spur the citizens to comb every nook where a Chrysler might have been hidden or ditched and the hiding place of the killers.

Plates From Toledo, O.

It has been established that the license plates on the bandits car belonged to H. L. Veon, Toledo, O., and it is believed they may be the persons who robbed a grocery store in that city. The couple who pulled that robbery had a small boy with them. No one apparently knows if it was a small boy or a girl who accompanied Corporal Paul's killers.

One of the peculiar incidents connected with the shooting is that Private Moore the night before the battle had written his resignation and had given it to Corporal Paul, in charge of the local detail. "I'm not going to send this in until the fifteenth," Paul replied. The next morning Paul was shot three times, twice through the right elbow and once through the body. Moore was shot twice, on the tip of his nose and he received a scalp wound on his head.

State Police In Search

The search for the slayers yesterday was conducted by Lieutenant D. M. Boettner of State Police, Butler and Captain D. E. Miller, state highway patrol, Greensburg. Boettner was travelling through here on an inspection when he received the word. Miller rushed here from Greensburg, State police and highway patrolmen have been brought here from all parts of the state.

Lieutenant Boettner returned to Butler barracks at midnight to direct the state police search from there but Captain Miller is here continuing the hunt. This afternoon he will be joined by Lieutenant Henry of the highway patrol. The roads are still being combed and no point which holds up will remain uninvestigated.

Last night two brothers of Corporal Paul came here from Hickory, Washington county and conferred with state highway patrol Captain Miller over the funeral arrangements. His body will be removed Sunday to Hickory, Pa. It is being guarded by a state patrolman here. Two hundred highway patrolmen will attend the funeral at Hickory.

The late Brady Clemens Paul was 26 years old and was born at Hickory,

Washington county, Pa., his parents being William M. Paul and Jennie Vincent Paul. He was a member of the Mount Prospect Presbyterian church at Hickory and the funeral services here will be conducted by Rev. Weaver of the First M. E. church from the residence of John S. Crowl, 335 East Washington street.

The corporal is survived by his mother, Mrs. R. L. McGugin of Washington, Iowa, two sisters, Mrs. J. C. Ray, Hickory, Pa. and Miss Ruth Paul, Woodville, Pa., and two brothers, McElroy Paul, Woodville, Pa., and Vincent Paul, Hickory, Pa.

The body will be taken to Hickory Sunday morning where funeral services will also be made with interment in Mount Prospect cemetery.

Car Bullet Riddled
The Chevrolet sedan which Deputy Sheriff William Reynolds secured on Adams street after it had been abandoned by the bandits, and which is now in the garage at the jail, is riddled with bullet holes. There are three holes on the right hand side of the windshield which are said to have been made when the woman fired through the windshield at Patrolman Ernest Moore. There is another hole through the windshield immediately in front of the driver's seat which was made it is believed when an officer fired at the driver. He must have dodged as the shot was fired. The shot went upward through the roof of the car.

There are two holes or indentations on the rear of the left light. In the back of the car are three bullet holes. The bullets are said to have been fired by Corporal Paul after he had been shot. One of the bullets went through a little to the left of the center of the back. The bullet was found lodged in the woodwork surrounding the instrument board. How the child, who is said to have been in the back seat, escaped this bullet is a mystery. The other bullet holes in the back of the car are lower down. The right front window is out, having been broken by a shot.

Some Toys In Car

In the car was some underwear which evidently belonged to a little boy about four or five years old. There was a toy victrola with records, chewing gum, golf balls and some other toys. In men's wear there was a lumber jacket, size 15-1-2, also a top shirt, size 15-1-2 with the letters G. L. which had evidently been placed there by a laundryman.

Two pocketbooks were found, containing a little over $29 in cash, a duplicate check to the National Bank of Butler, issued to the P. H. Butler company; also a check for $2.50 and some other papers. The car is in good shape with the exception of the bullet holes.

It has been found that the car is the property of H. L. Veon of Toledo, O. The bandits, according to information received here, had held up a furniture store in Toledo and were driving away in their car when they had an accident. Veon pulled up alongside to render assistance when the bandits pulled a gun on him and took his car.

Slippery Rock Boy Dies Of Infection

Boy Was Struck By Truck While Riding His Pony On The Highway

Injuries received last summer when he was struck by a truck while riding his pony near Slippery Rock caused the death of George W. Barnhart, aged 10, at his home a mile east of Slippery Rock on the Slippery Rock-Keister road at 1:40 o'clock Friday morning. Death resulted from an infection.

Young Barnhart was injured on June 29 when a truck, said to have been driven by Page Westlake and owned by the Slippery Rock Park association, skidded into the lad on the Keister road. He received a leg injury and was taken to the Butler hospital where he was given treatment and later removed to the New Castle hospital.

All efforts to heal the injury failed. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Barnhart; a brother, Charles, and two sisters, Zoe and Besie, all at home.

Funeral services will be held from the family home at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon with Rev. J. Harvey McCormick of the United Presbyterian church of Slippery Rock officiating. Short services will be held at the Rose Hill cemetery, Butler, Pa., at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon and interment made at that place.

Special Music At St. Mary's Church

Will Repeat Special Christmas Music On Sunday Morning At 11 O'clock

The special Christmas Season music rendered at St. Mary's church in connection with the Midnight Mass and also the 11 o'clock Mass Christmas day, will be repeated for the benefit of those who were unable to be present on those two occasions.

The Mass and special music will be presented Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock High Mass in the same manner, with the exception of the orchestra, which accompanied the organ on the previous occasion.

There will be the same beautiful vocal selections by the choir of more than 60 men and boys under the supervision of Father F. S. Clifford. Scores of people could not be accommodated at the previous rendition of this music and these and others interested will be afforded a third opportunity on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

The choir of St. Mary's church under the direction of Father Clifford has become known far and wide as one of the finest in this section of the country and as they are better with each rendition, there will be something of more than the usual in music presented on Sunday morning.

All Mr. Coolidge has to decide is whether a senate seat would mean going backward or going back.

DR. KEITH DENIES CHARGE POLITICS IN STATE DEPARTMENT

State Superintendent of Public Instruction John A. H. Keith of Harrisburg, was one of the speakers who addressed the afternoon session of the Pennsylvania State Educational association on Friday afternoon in the Cathedral.

Dr. Keith had compiled a large set of statistics bearing on the advancement of the teaching profession in Pennsylvania since 1870 and said that while in 1870 there was but 70 percent of the teachers had standard qualifications, that at the present time 91 per cent were qualified by standard requirements.

Following the adjournment of the session he spoke somewhat on the statement of Dr. James Bay of Easton who charged the office of the state superintendent as being a political office, "one without any honor, educationally."

"In my three years of office there has been no political pressure brought to bear," said Dr. Keith. "I feel that Dr. Bay's criticisms are not of me but of what he thinks is the system. Some day his recommendations may be adopted but not for some time."

James Edward Rodgers, director of the National Physical Education Service spoke on "Teacher Training for our Health and Physical Education Program." His address was an interesting one from the standpoint of physical education.

The afternoon session was adjourned at 4 o'clock to allow the delegates time to inspect the exhibits.

A New Years Resolution

Rutherford B. Hayes once said; "The one road to unquestioned credit and a sound financial condition is the exact and punctual fulfillment of every pecuniary obligation."

Good intentions, valuable as they are, cannot build good credit. Only by religiously living up to every agreement, discharging every obligation when due, is credit established, and only in that way can it be maintained.

No one can protect your credit but you—no one else can destroy it, for, always, your credit is what you make it. Your credit is one of your greatest assets—it deserves your highest protection.

Therefore on next Wednesday let us include in our New Year's resolutions that our 1930 record for paying our just obligations will be "Prompt and Satisfactory."

Whalen In Chicago For Traffic Study

(International News Service.) CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Grover Whalen, police commissioner of New York, who arrived in Chicago Friday, denied to chief of police William F. Russell of Chicago that the primary purpose of his visit here was to solve the murder of Frankie Uale, Brooklyn gangster.

Whalen said the purpose of his visit was to study traffic problems in Chicago with a view to bettering New York traffic congestion. The commissioner said he might also visit other cities.

"I do not expect to get any information about gang killings. I came to Chicago to consult with officials over a solution of New York traffic problems," said Commissioner Whalen. "They merely hooked up this visit with the Yale murder investigation because of the revelation of the framed holdup at the testimonial dinner to a judge. Really, my visit has nothing to do directly with that," Whalen continued.

Seeks Traffic Solution

"I will call upon police Commissioner Russell later in the day but we won't talk about gang murders and I don't expect to get information about gang killings."

"All I hope to do is find some way to aid in untangling New York's traffic conditions."

"I don't want to see newspapermen because I have nothing to say that would interest the public—and I can't answer half the questions they ask anyways."

Whalen's companions at first denied the commissioner was in Chicago. Whalen, it was learned did not use his correct name in registering at a hotel. But after being confronted with the facts that the newspapermen had seen Whalen going from the train to a taxicab, an aide admitted the commissioner had arrived. Whalen then issued his brief statement.

(International News Service.) BOSTON, Dec. 28.—"Snooping squads" were organized in each of the twenty-one police stations of Boston to carry out the mandate of police commissioner Herbert A. Wilson that war be declared on the open or undercover liquor drinking in night life centers.

At police headquarters it was admitted the order was aimed at liquor drinking in night clubs, restaurants and hotels and that it would be strictly enforced by the "snooping squads" throughout the new year.

The opening of the war on public liquor drinking was declared just as Boston was prevented from receiving $100,000 worth of assorted foreign liquors from the British Auxiliary schooner Irene C. from Nova Scotia. The boat was halted off Boston lightship by coast-guardmen. Captain Norman Conrad and eight members of his crew pleaded not guilty in federal court to complaints charging them with conspiracy to smuggle. They were held in heavy bail.

Eight Semester Ruling And

Important New

But two important amendments were made to the constitution of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association at their meeting here yesterday, these being the adoption of the eight-semester ruling, and the ruling that all coaches must be full time members of the school faculty, and certified to the Pennsylvania Educational Association.

The eight-semester ruling means that no athlete may participate in more than eight semesters of sport of any kind beyond the eighth grade. This ruling will become effective at the start of the 1920-21 year.

The ruling that all coaches must be full time members of the faculty became effective in 1921. This latter ruling was adopted by the Association to prevent interests outside the schools from gaining control of high school athletics which is looked upon as one of the most vicious evils in existence in scholastic athletics, where the so-called "pool-room crowd" dictates the policies of school athletics and the high school team becomes largely the representative town team, to be exploited for the benefit of the town.

Elect Officers
Many other changes were made in the wording of various rules, but they were merely made to legalize and clarify these rulings.

All the old officers were re-elected for the ensuing year. They are: President, Charles S. Davis of Steelton.

Vice President, J. F. Puderbaugh of Lock Haven.
Secretary, Edmund Wicht of Harrisburg.
Treasurer, R. B. Taylor of Norris-town.

Report of the treasurer shows a balance of $3,900.26 in the P. I. A. A. treasury.

Plan For Championship
An important change has been made in the plans for the state basketball championship this winter.

The P. I. A. A. now consists of eight sections, four of which are considered to lie in the eastern section of the state and four in the western section.

Under the plan as adopted for this year's tournament, the four teams from the eastern section and the four teams from the western section will play an inter-district series, after which a regional series will be played.

Winners of district one will play the winners of district two and the winner of district three will play the winner of district four. Then the winners in each of these two games will meet to determine which will represent his section of the state in the final game, which will be staged at a central point, with the winner of the other section who has been determined by tournament play among sections 5, 6, 7, and 8.

This final contest will take place on March 29th. This will make it possible for the elimination series to be held at a point nearer the home of the competing team. The date for the inter-district championship series will be set by M. B. Horner of Washington, president of District 7 and P. A. Jones of Sharon, president of District 8.

To Supervise Junior Highs
A committee was also appointed to secure information on the control and supervision of Junior High School Athletics, other which there is no supervision by the State Association at the present time, the Junior High School idea having been a development of only a few years back, and no previous thought had been given to this matter.

The committee consists of E. H. Snow of the Lockport Junior High School of Ardmore, chairman; and Fred E. Haines, of Duquesne, C. F. Sidel of Allentown, C. Herman Grose of Ambridge and G. B. Murdoch of Johnstown. These men will query the various Junior High schools of the state on their attitude in the matter and what regulations they would like to see carried out. Rules will then be adopted governing their procedure.

No Post-Season Tournaments
Another matter which was decided upon was the participation of teams in post-season basketball tournaments. It was voted by the Board of Control that there be no further post-season tournaments except as approved by the Board of Control under rules adopted by them.

These rules state that a team in order to play in such a tournament must be a member of the P. I. A. A. There can be no more than one game played in a day by any one team.

All contestants must undergo a physical examination to determine their fitness to participate and this fact must be certified to by the principal of the school.

Adequate facilities in the way of shower baths and clean sanitary premises must be provided for these games.

Only approved P. I. A. A. officials will be permitted to officiate in games.

A physician must be in attendance at the games or within easy reach of the scene of the tournament.

Only approved P. I. A. A. schools will be permitted to be invited to participate.

HONORED AT EVENT
A number of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. John Plink of Lyndal street, Thursday evening in honor of her daughter, Mae, and Peter Bordonaro to whom a marriage license was issued Thursday. Dancing and music were the diversions and at a seasonable hour, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. Miss Plink and Mr. Bordonaro will be married in the near future.

Convention Ends Friday Night

Retiring President Recounts Work Being Done By
P. S. E. A.

DR. DAVIDSON
TELLS OF EUROPE

What has been termed the "best convention the Pennsylvania State Educational Association ever held" came to a close in The Cathedral Friday night, December 27, when President Charles R. Foster declared the 1920 convention adjourned.

It was the conclusion of a two day convention, the results of which will show increasingly large as the years go by, a convention that adopted a Teachers' Welfare program unit.

The closing speaker of the convention was Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of the Pittsburgh schools, a veteran educator, and a figure in the educational field, an executive with few peers in his chosen endeavor.

Dr. Davidson chose for his subject "The New Educational Renaissance in Europe," the subject rising out of his experience as a delegate to the world convention of educators held in Geneva last July and August, and followed by a trip to the school systems of eight countries.

Europe is shaking off the shackles that have held the educational system fast in the years gone by, according to Dr. Davidson. International hatred has given way to a better understanding and the school teachers of Europe have glimpsed the vision of international peace.

Dr. Charles R. Foster, the retiring president of the association delivered the annual presidential address Friday evening, taking as his subject "The Objectives of the Pennsylvania Educational Association." In it he reviewed the humble beginning of the organization, the step by step progress made and prophesied that the years would see a much larger progress made in the standards of teachers in Pennsylvania. Speaking of the standards of the profession he said:

"We desire to promote among the members of the profession, the highest ideals of service. We want to develop in the teachers of the state a sense of personal responsibility for raising the professional standards of the teaching profession. To this end we must have a professional training more thorough preparation for teachers. Our official platform puts it this way—

"We advocate the ideal of four years of professional training above a four-year high school course, as the minimum goal for the teacher in the Commonwealth, and five years of professional training above the high school course, the A. M. degree or its equivalent as the minimum goal for junior and senior high school students."

We are advocating a more careful system of selection of entrants to the teacher training institutions of the state.

Salary Question.
Touching upon the matter of teachers' salaries he said:

"Some material advancement has been made in the last decade in the matter of better salaries for teachers, the average yearly salary having increased from $635 in 1919, to $1300 in 1920, and yet this amount is a very moderate competence considering the preparation which a teacher is required to make today. There should be no backward steps in this respect. The Association should be alert to combat any tendencies to lower salaries and should use every worthy influence to place this average upon a still higher basis. One of the most important matters which has been brought to my attention as president this last year has been the practice by some school boards in some of the districts of the state or requiring teachers to pay a stipulated amount in the form of graft to be reappointed to their positions. I was informed that a certain township school board in the district of the state department had mandated $50 from each teacher for reappointment. This case was handled by the officers of the Association in a vigorous manner, but broke down because the teachers were afraid to see the case through. We have assurances from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction that such school boards will be given the attorney general's office, if any teacher is willing to present an affidavit stating that any school-board or school-board member has made such a demand."

Accomplishments.
Listing some of the things accomplished by the P. S. E. A. showed the following according to Dr. Foster.

Purchase and operation of permanent headquarters.
Subsidies to convention districts.
Payment of expenses to state delegates to the N. E. A. convention.

Increase in the number of clerical assistants in the headquarters staff.
Relief of former teachers in financial distress.

Acquisition and development of the Lloyd Mifflin Memorial Home.
Group insurance.

An increase in the number of committees and in the number of meetings which they hold has added very materially to the costs of running the association.

Just a suggestion of a lack of harmonious relations with the Department of Public Instruction was voiced in the closing remarks of the retiring president's address. He said:

"One of our distresses during the last few years is the seeming lack of a fine working relationship with the Department of Public Instruction. This is not as it should be."

As your retiring president, may I express the hope that these two great organizations may be found working harmoniously together for our common cause—the development of our great common school system. The association ought to be alert to maintain friendly relationships with any and all friendly agencies interested in any phase of educational advancement.

Two musical features were bright spots of the evening's program. The first was the combined junior high school orchestras playing two numbers with Miss Eve Coulter directing the first number and John E. Patton directing the second.

Interspersing the addresses of Dr. Foster and Dr. Davidson, the senior high school chorus sang "Glory To God in the Highest" directed by Mrs. Isabel Zehner Infield.

Woods Is Injured
At Street Corner

Confined To Home With Injuries Sustained In Mysterious Manner

Joseph W. Woods of 1502 East Washington street, is confined to his home with a rather severe injury on the right side of the head back of the ear, sustained at the intersection of Reis street and Lincoln avenue about 8:30 o'clock last night.

The accident was witnessed by a number of people, who thought that Mr. Woods had fallen from or been thrown from an open car, which came north on Reis street and turned west, not stopping when the accident occurred.

Mr. Woods on the other hand has no recollection of what happened, except that he is quite certain that he was not in a car and that he was walking home from the home of friends but a short distance from the scene of the accident.

The witnesses of the incident rushed to the middle of Lincoln avenue, where Mr. Woods was lying in a semi-conscious condition with blood apparently running from his ears and nose and to all appearances seriously injured.

Clarence Kimmel who was one of the persons, who happened along during the excitement, took the injured man in his car and took him to his home, where a physician was called and examined his injuries, putting him on his back in the cut at the right side of his head.

Apparently Mr. Woods escaped serious injury but at present is puzzled to understand how he came to be injured.

second vice president was a courtesy both to him and to the city of New Castle. For many years he has been active in the work of the association through his acquaintanceship and influence in the association the convention was brought to New Castle this year.

Williamsport Next Year.
Williamsport will be host to the convention next year, this city being the only one to extend an invitation. It was understood that Philadelphia, Allentown and Easton would extend invitations, but these cities withdrew at the last moment, leaving the field to Williamsport. The invitation was extended by A. M. Weaver of that city.

While this invitation must be approved by the executive council, this will be a mere matter of form. Before leaving the platform last night at the adjournment session, Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of the Pittsburgh schools, announced that Pittsburgh would ask for the convention in 1921.

Princess Marie Jose, only daughter of the king of Belgium, is said to be somewhat shy. She is betrothed to the Italian crown prince, Humbert.

Group Conferences At State Convention Concluded Friday

Department, section and round table meetings were held Friday morning in the Senior High School in connection with the final day of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association convention.

From the interest displayed by the delegates to the convention in the various groups in which they are engaged in the profession of teaching and the excellent papers presented, also the spirited discussions developed in the various groups there can be little doubt but that all the sectional and departmental sessions were successful.

In several instances, it was stated that the group meetings held at this convention were the best in the history of the association. A report of a number of the meetings held follows:

Junior High School
The Junior High School Section meeting in Room 11, Senior High School, Friday, had most interesting speakers. E. J. Snow of Ardmore, presided. In his opening remarks, Mr. Snow sounded the keynote for the work of the Junior High School group, calling attention to the need of a revival of the Junior High School spirit, which was present at the beginning of the movement. He pointed out that too often the Senior High School dominates the program and made a plea for equal pay for both Junior and Senior High school teachers.

Officers elected for the coming year are: President—Fred E. Haines, Duquesne, Pa.; vice president—E. J. Snow, Ardmore, Pa.; secretary—W. H. Bristow, department of public instruction.

Superintendent Samuel Fausold, of Ambridge outlined some of the major problems of articulation, advocating the extension of the philosophy and methods of the Junior High School down into the elementary schools and up into the Senior High School, in order to insure continuity of the whole program.

The group expressed disappointment because the association failed to provide speakers for the meeting and requested that the attention of the organization be called to this matter next year.

Social Studies
Social studies section met in Room 17 with President Clara M. Deck of West Leosport, presiding. Percy B. Caley, department of social science, Schenley High, Pittsburgh, spoke on "Vitalizing Some Lessons in Problems of Democracy."

He emphasized the presentation of the subject to classes, the necessity for wide reading on the part of teachers and pupils of newspapers and magazines in an intelligent manner and the encouragement of the individual student to take part in class discussion through the method of thought questions.

Guidance in World History was presented by Helen A. Simmen, of Pittsburgh. She emphasized the presentation of three units of World History, first Religion as it branches out from the old Hebrew faith showing the development of the modern religions brought about so many different denominations; second: the forming of European alliances preceding the World War, giving the background for such combinations and third: comparisons of different nations in regard to the World War.

The address of J. H. Green, of Harrisburg, N. J. on the Aim and End of All of It, was instructive and interesting.

Health Education
The Health Education department met in Room 323, Senior High School, with Miss Louise Johnson, York, Pa., on "Trends in School Nursing," read by State Director W. G. Morehead. The discussion on it was led by S. H. Replogle, assistant superintendent of Allegheny county.

It was shown that excellent work is being done by teachers and nurses in checking up on cultivation of health habits by pupils, carrying out these habits to the home and in life. It showed a check made regularly with relation of child's health to school progress; to frequency of absence on account of illness. Follow up work by school nurse necessary to aid teacher, in visiting homes and convinces the parents that what is being done is worthwhile. It was also stated that the home must assist in carrying on since the children are at home much longer than in school.

Trends in Physical Education were discussed by James Edward Rogers, director of National Physical Education Service, New York City. There were four divisions, he said, first—Athletic trend, second play and recreation trend, third Health Instruction Trend and fourth Physical Education Trend. It is a big job he said to put education into physical education and physical education in education. Do not need coaches, nurses, doctors and health instructors who are educators. Must have trained teachers in this field, must give ample time, must have facilities, indoors and outdoors, must give credit, must have a clear definite program, graded, based on individual needs, with definite educational objectives, must show results, skill, progress and health habits, he said.

The new officers elected were: President—E. H. Geasa, Pittsburgh; Vice President—C. F. Adamson, Meadville and secretary, Miss Helena McCray, Harrisburg.

Forensic League
The Pennsylvania Forensic League met Friday in room 31, senior high school, with a good attendance of members. Reports were made by the 40 high schools of the state had participated in the eliminations last year and that this year there would be at least 600 schools take part.

Addresses were given by G. Arthur Stetson of Titusville and C. V. Erdly of Harrisburg. Guy C. Brosius of Lock Haven and H. E. Brumbaugh of Irwin and J. Buell Snyder of Pittsburgh.

Officers for 1920 remain the same as in the past year for the coming year, being: honorary president, Dr. John A. H. Keith, state superintendent of public instruction; president, Dr. Albert Lindsay Rowland, Elkins Park; executive secretary and treasurer, Dr. C. H. Meyerholz, Pittsburgh; state section directors: northwestern, of Williamsport, Miss Watt of Allegheny county and Miss Lu M. Hartman of Mansfield, Pa.

Library Council
Third annual group meeting of the School Librarians of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association was held Friday in the Library of the Senior High School with forty school librarians, teacher-librarians, principals of schools and other interested persons in attendance.

It was the largest group yet to have attended one of these meetings and it proved of unusual interest.

Miss Helen Westlake of this city welcomed the visiting delegates, Miss Maude Munster of Altoona, was the acting chairman of the meeting, Miss Elizabeth Hoge of Johnstown, was secretary. No officers were elected, those from the past year holding over and being: President, Miss Ethel Feagley, Elkins Park, vice president, Miss Elizabeth Ryder of Lancaster and secretary, Miss Elizabeth Hoge of Johnstown.

Reports of a survey of school librarians of the state showed 369 full time school librarians and 74 part time librarians.

Report of the textbook committee showed a printed pamphlet for classification and a Readers Guide with practical suggestions for introducing to library.

It was decided to have a newsletter printed in pamphlet form for members during school year instead of former mimeographed sheets sent out monthly. The annual dues of the council were increased from fifty cents to $1.

The question of rebinding books was presented by Mr. Carroll of Philadelphia.

Organization problems were presented by Miss Virginia McMaster of Pittsburgh. Miss McMaster stated that the library is the laboratory of school problems. She suggested the presentation of materials to provoke independent use of the library by teachers and suggested the need of giving the pupils a clear conception of the purpose of the school library. She stated that a fund or budget was needed to provide reference material for various departments.

She suggested the standardizing of rules and methods of cataloging.

Business of the State Department spoke on Organization and Administration of the Library. He said a library was required in any high school receiving state recognition. Where there are 500 pupils a full time librarian is required and the same is recommended for three hundred pupils. Of the 1900 high schools in the state, sixty per cent have less than 300 pupils. The suggested minimum library fund is $1 a pupil per year, and is being met largely throughout the state.

The architecture of the library is greatest interest of the state. The librarian, he said should be a trainer of teachers.

The third speaker was Miss Mary Foster of Pittsburgh, who spoke on new books of interest to high school librarians, suggested a list of approximately twenty-five books for junior and senior high schools.

Pennmanship Section
Pennmanship Department met in room 103, Senior High School Friday. Miss Catherine P. Boyle of Philadelphia, the retiring president, presided. The election of officers resulted in the re-election of Miss Boyle as president and the selection of Miss Mary A. B. Murdie of Philadelphia as secretary.

Dr. Elmer G. Miller of Pittsburgh, spoke on Modern Trends in the Teaching of Handwriting. Some of his most salient points were: Handwriting has not yet been eliminated from the teaching of the three "R's." Universities have largely been responsible for the poor handwriting; Horace Greeley and others were great men in spite of the handicap of poor handwriting; Enthusiasm prevails in the teaching of handwriting; Business men are interested in the form not the volume of handwriting; an open mind is the attitude of all supervisors and teachers; New ideas in handwriting are failures, as indicated in the use of vertical system; Handwriting responsibility of teachers should be shared by teachers; Good writing is considered a modern need; There will be a need of good writing as long as there is need of written expression in education.

George R. Cressman of Chester county, spoke on A County Project in the supervision of Pennmanship. He told of the need of a speedy, legible handwriting rather than the style of the grandfathers and grandmothers.

He then gave the plan of instruction in writing in the Chester County schools in which his conclusion was that "We must apply to the teaching of handwriting the same principle as we apply to the teaching of arithmetic, that is, we must lead from the known to the unknown, the training must be a systematic development of right habits in the formation of letters for legibility and that supervisors must be definite and objective, not visionary and obscure."

There was also a valuable paper on "Left-handedness" by Miss Margaret McCausland of the Philadelphia Normal School, which was read by Miss Mary A. B. Murdie.

Modern And Latin Languages
The Modern and Latin Language groups convened in Room Ten, Senior High School Friday. There was a large and representative gathering of both sections. An interesting program was carried out that interested all.

Agriculture
The Agriculture group met in Room 32, Senior High School, Friday. T. C. Y. Ford of Washington, the president, presided. The addresses given included that of W. A. Broyles, Pennsylvania State College on The Use of Contracts in Teaching Agriculture and that of Future Farmers of America, Inc. in Pennsylvania by a representative of the State Department of Public Instruction.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were: president, J. T. Shriner, Taylor-Allegheny high school, Pittsburgh; vice president, L. J. Ulmer, State Teachers' College, Lock Haven, Pa., and secretary, Mary Skillen, Lancaster, Pa.

Home Economics
The session of the home economics section was held in room 124 of the senior high school Friday, with Mrs. Davidson of Harrisburg presiding.

The program was in the nature of a clinical conference, with many of those present participating in the discussion. Most of the discussion was concerning the opportunities of a girl after she leaves high school and during her future life as a result of the study of home economics in high school. Among those participating in the discussion were Mrs. Manley

Press Delegates End Convention

School Journalists Have Excellent State Convention
Here On Friday

YORK INSTRUCTOR
NAMED PRESIDENT

After re-electing Lambert Greenawalt, York high school instructor to the presidency of the Pennsylvania School Press association for his second term, the two hundred student editors, reporters, business managers and faculty supervisors in attendance at the fourth annual convention of the organization in session here, formally adjourned early Friday afternoon until next year.

At the same time as Greenawalt was chosen, the convention named Miss Gale R. Kirschner of Sharon as vice president and Miss Elizabeth Matthews of Harrisburg as secretary and treasurer for the ensuing year.

Woman Speaks
Miss Margaret M. Sullivan, teacher in the South high school of Cleveland, was the principal afternoon speaker, having as her subject "The School Paper and Publicity for Education." After Miss Sullivan had finished her address, the policies and standards of the P. S. P. A. for the year of 1930 were read by President Greenawalt, who presided during the afternoon.

As a social diversion for the boys and girls who came from various sections of the state, a dance was sponsored in the gymnasium of the Washington school building. Dancing continued from 3:30 until 5 o'clock.

Banquet Event
A banquet marked the climax of the day's activities, starting promptly at 5:30 and running into the early evening hours. The dinner was a splendid affair much to the delight of the delegates, who took advantage of this fact to renew old and make new acquaintances with fellow editors from other sections of the state.

The evening's menu was a delicious one and certainly satisfied the delegates. In addition to the usual buffet table, there were baked sweet potatoes, baked corn, cabbage salad, rolls and coffee, ice cream, cake and mints.

Speaking before the assembled group in the afternoon Miss Sullivan of Cleveland brought greetings from the Ohio association, stating it is the founder of the Pennsylvania organization, that 1930 will prove a most successful year for the P. S. P. A.

The School Paper
"The School Paper and Publicity for Education" was the subject upon which the Cleveland faculty supervisors spoke. She declared that the school paper is more and more becoming a real power in the field of education, and more and more school authorities are beginning to realize it.

She reminded her audience that it is the responsibility of the school paper to be a real power, actually read, that is thoroughly perused by the parents in the home. Parents are naturally interested and others not parents have an interest because of friendships with the school students.

Certain essential fundamentals were spoken of by Miss Sullivan to some extent, especially the selection of supervisors for student publications. Teachers who have a well grounded journalism training are the kind which are needed most in the schools.

In closing she told the student editors that what they write in English, and to remember that, "Write in the most intelligent way you can and make choice selections of your words."

Policies Agreed Upon
As the closing act, the standard policies of the school press association were read. The policies follow:

I. Student publications are for, by and of the students. They have no place for commercial material.

II. Student publications aim to serve the greatest good to the greatest number, and aid in building up the honor and good name of the schools.

III. Student publications should sell to the general public the idea that the school is the home of the future and expects therefore the active support of all citizens.

IV. A student publication written by the faculty is sailing under false colors.

V. School publications are not operated for the mere purpose of teaching journalism. The first purpose is to present the creative work of students in all branches of work and to serve as a medium of construction and creative educational publicity.

VI. The school publication is a powerful ally to school authorities.

VII. Under wise and sympathetic leadership the school publication requires no censorship. For censorship thus becomes automatic through the staff's feeling of pride and self-respect.

VIII. Students who do the highest type of work on the school publication deserves scholastic credit for that work.

IX. The school department is not the word of any single department but is an asset to all departments and the school as a whole.

X. Wholesome rivalry between publications is desirable.

XI. Many errors in a school publication are more to be desired than a school publication written by the faculty.

B. Standards.
For many of our standards I refer you to the official bulletin prepared during the year and distributed here today. As our official style book we have adopted that issued by the Columbia School Press association.

President Greenawalt, stated following adjournment that next year's convention city will likely be Williamsport. However, this is definitely settled by the staff of the executive council, selected yesterday which will meet shortly. The new council is composed of the following: Clyde E. Lyle, Kutztown; Francis Meekin, Pittsburgh; Charles F. Troxell, Philadelphia; Gertrude L. Turner, Abington; Rachel S. Turner, Bloomsburg; Miriam Wendle, Williamsport and F. Fife Sterrett, Monaca.

Fine Exhibits Of Trade School

New Castle Trade School Exhibits For Convention Of
P. S. E. A. Is Noteworthy

Deserving great praise were the trade school exhibits at the senior high school in connection with the P. S. E. A. convention.

It is astonishing to many people who saw the display of work, that articles such as highly polished and substantially made cedar chests and cabinets and intricate steam engines are being made at New Castle Trade school.

There were wooden moldings on display which involved a lot of work on the part of the trade school students. Tie racks, clothing trees, magazine racks also had their places in the fine exhibition, all of which attracted much attention from the constant crowd passing in and out of the high school.

Racks which were used in the art display on the second floor of the building were also built at the trade school.

Automatic Telephones For Use Of Blind Persons Latest Invention

(International News Service)

PARIS, Dec. 28.—Automatic telephones for the blind have been devised by a local welfare organization, it was announced today.

The new instrument is the same as the ordinary automatic telephone, except that the exchanges and numbers are in braille characters above specially constructed openings for dialling.

The first instrument was tried and approved by Maitre Scapini, the blind war hero and deputy. The apparatus will be installed in homes for the blind and elsewhere.

The new invention offers a solution to a difficult problem, since the dialling system had threatened to make telephoning impossible for the blind.

Japanese Arrive In England For Naval Sessions

Japanese Delegation Has Trying Time In Rough Crossing Of Atlantic Ocean

VIEWPOINTS ARE LIKELY TO STAND

By HARRY R. FLORY
International News Service Special Correspondent
LONDON, Dec. 28.—While the Japanese delegates to the five-power naval disarmament conference rested at Grosvenor House today from the effects of a rough trans-Atlantic crossing from the United States, plans went forward today for a series of preliminary parleys between them and representatives of Great Britain.

According to present indications, the first of these meetings will take place on January 2. Reijiro Wakatsuki, chief of the Japanese delegation, is expected to meet Sir Ronald Lindsay, newly-appointed ambassador to the United States, and other high government officials to discuss the attitudes and policies which will be pursued at the forthcoming parity.

MacDonald Resting
Prime Minister MacDonald himself will not meet the eastern delegates for some little time, as he is enjoying a fortnight's vacation at his country home at Lossiemouth, Scotland.

"I am naturally anxious to discuss the conference with Premier MacDonald," Wakatsuki told International News Service. "But I do not expect to meet him until he returns from his holiday."

"I have every hope, however, that when the delegates sit around the table at the five-power conference they may compose their differences for the benefit of world peace."

Wakatsuki declined to go into detail regarding the Japanese stand with relation to Great Britain until he has met the representatives of this nation for formal discussions. He was asked whether Japan would hold out for a 70 per cent cruiser ration with Britain and the United States.

Made Full Statement
"I think," he stated guardedly, "I made the fullest statement of our attitude upon that point while in Washington."

"May Japan be said to agree in principle with the United States and Britain before the conference opens?" was the next question.

"In a conference of this kind," Wakatsuki declared, "when men sit around such a table, there is much business to be done."

The Japanese delegate then asked to be excused from answering further questions at this particular time.

That the Japanese attitude on cruiser strength did not undergo any change during the trans-Atlantic crossing, however, was amply demonstrated in a written statement handed to the press when the 42 Japanese naval delegates arrived in London from Southampton, where they disembarked from the Olympic.

"We shall do everything possible to make the conference a lasting success and secure the permanent peace of the world," the statement declared. "The conversations in America proved very profitable and Japan will be satisfied with naval strength inferior to that of Great Britain and the United States."

I said, 'I want your car to get away from here.' At the same time, he brandished a gun which he had evidently been holding in his hand in a concealed manner, exclaiming, 'See this!'

Turning to Miss Nickum, Mr. Horton said, 'What do you think we had better do?' Miss Nickum said, 'I guess we had better get out.'

The man, he stated, got rough with Miss Nickum then, partly pulling her out of the machine. In the meantime the woman had gotten out of the car and forced Horton over along the curb at the point of a gun. She asked him if he had any money with him. Horton replied that he had a little, and she told him to hand it over.

Will a National Murder Trust Be Revealed by New York Inquiry?

Inspector Donovan, Magistrate Vitale, Arthur C. Johnson, Frankie Marlow. Above scene shows Frankie Yale's body sprawled beside car after slaying in Brooklyn, which comes to foreground anew through the holdup at a dinner given in honor of Magistrate Vitale, of New York.

SENSATIONAL developments are expected in connection with investigation of the "holdup" of guests at the testimonial dinner recently to Magistrate Albert H. Vitale in New York. Police Commissioner Grover Whalen is in Chicago seeking to link the underworld slayings of Frankie Marlow and Frankie Yale with the killings arranged for at so much per head.

A man may be put on the spot or taken for a ride for as little as $20,000, payable in installments if you wish. The executioner collects $2,500, the trust gets $5,000 cash and the rest in installments. The motive behind the Vitale dinner holdup is alleged to have been the securing of a murder contract in the possession of a Chicago gangster who was a guest at the dinner. The dinner was arranged, the unknown Chicagoan was "put on the spot," and when the holdup men went through the pockets of the guests the contract was among the loot. The contract called for $20,000 and is believed to have had some reference to the killing of Frankie

Stock Market Is Dull Today

All Sections Of Stock Market
Settle Down To Lower
Price Levels Today

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service
Financial Editor.

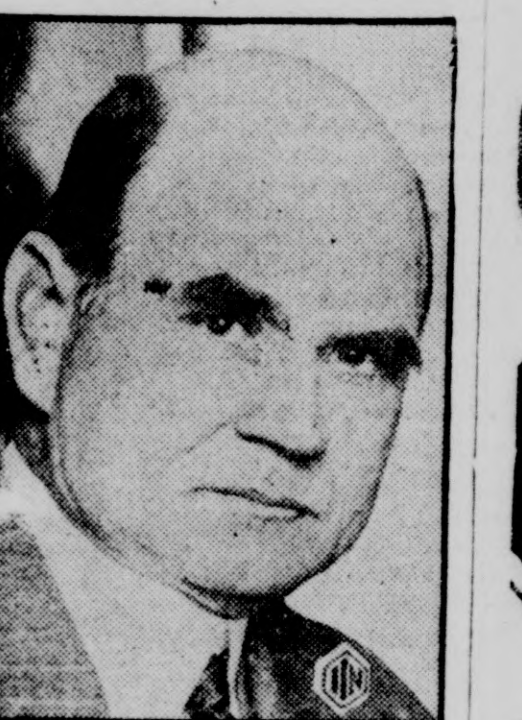

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—All sections of the stock market settled down to lower price levels in a slow and featureless week-end market. In the absence of aggressive buying demand, the bears continued their persistent short selling of the steel, oil, motor car, utility and specialty stocks, as well as a few of the rails.

A break in Sears Roebuck to 83 1/2 for a new low of nearly 5 points and a drop in U. S. Steel below 164 helped along the bears' campaign and the market closed with prices of leading stocks down 1 to 3 points. New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad continued the downward movements which have been in progress a week or more, unfavorable November earnings and the falling off in December car loadings have turned speculative interest away from the rails, for the time being at least.

Oil Stocks Unsettled

Oil stocks were unsettled by the rumors of price cuts in Mid-continent crude and coppers by the piling up of red metal surpluses above ground. Only feeble rallies were recorded in the final period and prices were generally lower at the close. United States Steel lost 1 1/4 at 164 1/2. Anaconda was down 1 1/8 at 73 1/8. Chrysler Motor down 3/4 at 35 1/4. Standard Oil down 2 at 109 7/8. Sears Roebuck down 2 7/8 at 85 3/8. American Can up 3/4 at 115 1/4. General Motors down 3/8 at 39 7/8. Stock sales were approximately 1,600,000 shares.

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Keenly impressed with the discussion of ballistics here and its connections in charging Fred Burke, alleged gangster and gunman, with the slaying of seven Moran gangsters, Police Commissioner Grover Whalen of New York, announced today he would have the lead slugs fired from the machine guns in the massacre, compared with the slugs that ended the life of Frankie Yale, Brooklyn gangster.

Whalen said his visit here was primarily to study Chicago traffic problems, but that his discussions with Major Calvin Goddard, ballistics expert, had so impressed him he would have his detective heads compare the markings on the two sets of bullets in the hope of linking the murders.

Burke was charged with murder after a coroner's jury became satisfied the bullets which killed Moran's men were fired from machine guns found in Burke's St. Joseph, Mich. home.

It is believed, too, that Whalen will ask his detectives to compare ballistically, bullets in the bodies of slain New York gangsters with those found in slain Chicago gunmen.

Pittsburgh Police Officer Is Killed By Negro Bandits

Pittsburgh And Vicinity Being

Negro Thugs

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Dec. 28.—One of the greatest manhunt in the history of this city is underway today as city police and detectives conduct a search for the three negro bandits who last night killed James Hughes 50, a negro policeman.

Patrolman Hughes who in an encounter with bandits a year ago gave an account of himself which earned him a purse for bravery, was killed when he gave pursuit to the bandits after he had been called to the Harry Langer grocery store. The bandits had rifled the cash register of $185 while they held the proprietor and two customers at bay with their guns.

Hughes after he was mortally wounded kept firing his gun until it was emptied and it is believed that he succeeded in wounding two of the bandits before he succumbed to the effects of the six bullets that they shot into his body.

Peter's Adventures

THE GARBAGE MAN OF BEETLE LAND

Peter, out of the corner of his eye, glanced at Sexton Beetle and saw that the poor insect was sobbing.

"I am the garbage man of the beetle tribe, but I can't help it," sighed he. "And it is well for the rest of you insects that I am. You might find it very unhealthy to live among all the dead things that I bury and get out of your way. But that is all the gratitude I get for disposing of what you don't like. You all despise me."

"I don't Cousin Sexton," said Biffer, eagerly. "Do you suppose that I would be here if I did?"

"Well, you probably will after you have visited us," replied the fat fellow. "Everybody does! Wife and I never learn our lesson, however. We would like to be friends with all our relatives, so we keep on inviting them to dine with us. They never come the second time. Oh, well, there is no use worrying about it. We do our duty and live our own lives, and if other insects don't like us Sexton Beetles it is just too bad." He sighed heavily.

Peter felt sorry for him.

"I am afraid that you take things too much to heart," said the boy.

"I can't all be alike of course but we can all find something in each other to admire. For instance, I may not want to live just as you do, but I know I shall be much interested in your manners and customs. To change the subject—for some time I have been smelling something decidedly disagreeable. Can either of you tell me what it is?"

"To the boy's amazement, Biffer coughed loudly. Turning to look at him, Peter noted that the gun beetle was shaking with repressed laughter. Cousin Sexton, however, seemed far from pleased. In fact, the boy was almost sure that he saw tears in the fellow's eyes, and certainly Sexton Beetle hung his head as he answered the boy's question.

Youth Confesses To Murder, Police Find It is "Hoax"

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28.—The colorful murder story unfolded by Morris Hood, 18 year old Walnut Park, California youth, wherein he confessed that he murdered his brother-in-law, was merely the fabrication of a home sick boy, Philadelphia police revealed Friday.

Hood was "broke" and wanted to go home. L. Peter Scheller of the murder squad gruffly explained.

"He hoped to gain free transportation to California by telling the murder tale."

Suspicious of the youth's story that he killed Bud Roberts, 24, of Horse Thief Canyon, California, two years ago, the police officials checked with California authorities. Confronted with the report, Hood admitted that he had lied; that he was an auto mechanic; that he was broke; that he wanted to go home and that he had expected to obtain free transportation by his story.

Vagrant charges were lodged against the youth after the checkup.

Westminster's 1929 Record Impressive

Survey Of Tri-State Conference Shows Westminster Ahead By One Point

United Presbyterians Forge To Front In Football And Tennis

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Dec. 28.—If there are any New Year's resolutions concerning athletic teams at Westminster college, they will be in the nature of resolves to continue the good work of the past year. Sports in all branches enjoyed highly successful seasons at Westminster during 1929, and Titan officials are looking forward to the New Year with somewhat of an optimistic viewpoint.

A study of tri-state conference records reveals the fact that Westminster was not lower than second in any sport during the year. The football team tied with Waynesburg for the conference championship, duplicating last year's feat of tying Duquesne for the grid title.

Coach John Lawther's basketball team, with 15 victories in 17 contests, was awarded the Pittsburgh district championship by the Associated Press, but had to be content with second in the tri-state conference because Waynesburg was not played. A year ago, Lawther's Titans won the conference championship.

The varsity track team, with a wealth of new material last year, defeated its natural rivals, Grove City and Allegheny, and placed second in the tri-state conference, pushing Geneva, the winner, to the finish.

The varsity cross country team, after winning the conference championship two years in succession, dropped into second place this year. Geneva won the title.

Varsity tennis also hit top form again and the racquetmen won the third conference championship in four years.

Rating five points for first place, three for second, and one for third, the conference teams finished in the following order in all sports for the year:

Enon Valley High Girls Win From Mt. Jackson 23-20

The Enon High boys and girls varsity basketball teams divided a double bill with the Mt. Jackson boys and girls in games played at the Enon Valley court on Friday night.

The Enon girls led by the great work of McCown and E. Trudel held a three point advantage over the Mt. Jackson girls in the first game of the evening. The game was nip and tuck throughout with the final result in doubt until the whistle blew. Both teams gave a fine exhibition on the foul line, tossing in all of their free throws.

Coach Ruthrauff's Enon High boys team took a lacing 25 to 10 in the final game. It was the work of St. Clair with five baskets that sent the Enon boys down to defeat. The Enon team was held to three field goals, due to the fine guarding of the Mt. Jackson guards, Gilchrist and Pitzer.

The summaries:

Boosters To Play Pennsy Quintet In City League Game

City League Game Tonight Offers Pennsy And Boosters; Two Church League Games

Tonight at the Y. M. C. A. floor the New Castle Boosters will play the Pennsy quintet in a city league engagement. Two church league games will be played, between the First M. E. and Mahoning M. E. and the Central Christians and Wesley M. E. teams. The first game starts at 7:30 o'clock.

On Monday night the Boosters meet the "Y" Seniors in a city league tilt. Coach Fraser hopes to see his fast stepping Boosters ahead in both these games. The Boosters opened the city league playing by taking the Today's Five for a 23 to 21 win.

Tough Schedule.
Next week the Boosters play one for the Boosters. On Monday night they meet the "Y" Seniors. On Tuesday night they will play the K. of C. club of Beaver Falls on the New Brighton Armory floor. The K. of C. club is composed of ex-high stars and reputed to be fast.

On Wednesday night, January 1, the K. of C. club of Beaver Falls will return the game and play at the local "Y" floor with the Boosters. A large crowd will follow the Beaver Falls team to this city.

Thursday night the Boosters will go to Butler to play the fast Butler Armory team on the Butler Armory floor. The Geneva college team recently handed the Amos a lacing and the Boosters desire to do the same thing. Coach Arnold "Piz" Fraser has the Boosters primed for the exceptionally hard schedule for next week and hopes to see the boys pull all the games into the victory column. All players are asked to report at the "Y" promptly tonight for the game in the city league.

Three vessels left Yokohama, Japan, on November 13, carrying between them a total of 7,398 bales of raw silk for the American market. The value of the shipments totaled over $4,500,000.

The Twain Doth Meet

THE ANNUAL EAST VS. WEST GAME ON NEW YEAR'S DAY WILL SHOW PERHAPS AS GREAT A GALAXY OF STARS AS EVER MET ON A GRIDIRON. MANY OF THEM WILL BE MAKING THEIR FINAL APPEARANCE IN FOOTBALL.

The annual all-star football game, between so-called east and west teams, will be played at Trison, New Year's day, for the benefit of the Shriners' Home for Crippled Children. These contests are always interesting and richly patronized because of the charity concerned, but they are of little or no significance so far as the contending merits of east and west football are concerned, nor of team play, of course, because the stars do not have much time to practice as thoroughly organized units.

Percy Loecey, coach of San Francisco's famous Olympic club gridsters, is organizing the west team this year, while the east's stars are being assembled by Coaches Dick Hanley of Northwestern and Andy Kerr of Colgate.

The custom is to invite outstanding stars to play in this game and there is always a most commendable response. Because Stanford is playing Army at Pasadena this afternoon, the west must do without several Cardinal brilliants, while the east's team will have to play without at least three Pittsburgh aces, because the Panthers are preparing for the Rose Bowl classic next Wednesday, New Year's day.

In previous east-west games, the former has used many "Big Ten" conference stars. It is often contended that this was unfair because these stars were really from the middle west. The east has even used some "Big Six" players in such contests, these chaps coming from west of the Mississippi, which made their teams really represent almost three-quarters of the United States when playing the west (Pacific coast) all-stars.

This year it is expected that the

NEW YEAR'S EVE IS A GREAT RESPONSIBILITY

Titan Floor Squad Has Crippled "Jinx"

O'Donovan, Brownlee, And Hamas On Injured List With Important Games Ahead

First Game At New Wilmington Is Set For New Year's Eve With Adrian

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Dec. 28.—Ten members of the Westminster College basketball team reported to Coach John Lawther, Thursday night, for the first practice session in preparation for the regular season which starts January 3 at Grove City.

When the men reported, it was found that Captain O'Donovan is still in poor shape, suffering from an old leg injury. Harry Brownlee, lanky star from Lock Haven, did not report. Brownlee was injured in pre-season games and has been confined to his bed during Christmas recess. "Jinx" Hamas, diminutive forward from East Rutherford, N. J., also failed to report. It is hoped that Brownlee and Hamas are able to report this week. Those who worked out in the initial drive toward the important Grove City game last night were: Crowell, Delahunt, Newton, Kocharan, Connelley, Fisher, Blauer, Rice, Dvorzak. Captain O'Donovan was able to practice foul shooting a while.

Butler Y. M. C. A. has cancelled the game scheduled for Saturday night at Butler. As a result, the Titans will not get into actual competition until New Year's eve at New Wilmington when Adrian College of Michigan will be met.

Unless Brownlee, Hamas and O'Donovan are able to play in the Adrian and Grove City games, the Titans will not be impressive in the opening games on the schedule. Coach John Lawther last night said that he fears that injury and sickness may cause the Titans to get off to a bad start.

Four Good Games In Church League On Friday Night

Four fast games were played in the New Castle Church Basketball league on Friday night. Two of the games were quite exciting with one-point differences at the finish.

In the first game the Third U. P. team led by McClouds, Lutz and McKelley defeated the Epworth M. E. team 21 to 20. The score at half time favored the Epworth team 13 to 5, but they were unable to hold this lead in the third and fourth quarters. Twaddle was the big shot for the losers.

The First Baptists continued undefeated in Church league circles by dropping the Highland U. P. team 36 to 16. The Baptists led at the end of the half 21 to 5. A. Uram, T. Wallace and B. Wallace led the attack for the winners, with Jenkins, Pollock and Johns the best for the Highlanders.

Temples Look Good
The strong Temple Israel team downed the Croton M. E. quintet 27 to 17, in the third game of the evening. At the end of the half the Temples were leading 15 to 8. E. Solomon, J. Solomon, S. Levin and Davids played good basketball for the undefeated Temples, while the work of Llewellyn and Nolan featured for the Crotonites.

The St. John's Lutherans held a one-point advantage over the Central Presbyterians in the fourth and final game. It was an exciting fray. At the end of the half the score favored the Presbyterians 10 to 8. The work of Kelso, Miller, Genkinger and Gilbert pulled the game out of the fire for the Lutherans, while Reare and Shoaff carried the burden for the Crotonites.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Stock Market Today Is Reported Unsettled

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The stock market was unsettled at the week-end by renewed selling of the same group of utility, specialty and railroad stocks which caused the break in prices in Friday's closing period. The "store" stocks were under fire as Sears Roebuck dropped back 4 points to 84 1/2-1/2 in the first period, while Montgomery Ward reacted to 46. In both cases current prices were around 100 points below the high of the year and only 4 points from the bottom. U. S. Steel broke under 164 for a 2-point loss and railroad stocks exhibited a weak tone.

Good Christmas business, with a somewhat clouded prospect for the immediate future was shown in the week-end business reviews. Tax selling and bear raids continued to feature the market and the most hopeful bulls were betting, not on the near future, but on the long-pull for their favorite stocks. The next two or three months, they say, will contain a large sprinkling of unfavorable business and industrial news, which will prevent timid speculators and investors from buying stocks.

Pennsylvania Railroad fell through to 73 3/8, only fractionally above the year's lowest price, on announcement of a big shrinkage in November earnings. Other rail stocks showed the

Foster's Weather Forecast

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Severe cold wave, expected to enter on December 27 and the general over the continent, will be followed by a moderate rise in temperatures to a little above normal centering on 30, as moderate storm wave centering on that date crosses continent; precipitation on north Atlantic coast will be expected to decrease during and after the storm wave centering on 30, following storm wave not extend far inland; Ontario, Ohio and westward will be expected to average a little above normal precipitation during January; central and south Atlantic and all of Gulf states will be expected to average above normal precipitation during January for some time afterward, excepting west Texas, where below normal precipitation will continue during January.

The year 1930 and the number of my postoffice drawer are the same, so don't think you are making a mistake when addressing me at drawer or box 1930, Washington, D. C.

January will be a month of great temperature extremes, both below and above normal, but will average about normal temperatures and a little above normal precipitation for the continent as a whole. Storm wave centering on December 30 will be followed by a moderate cold wave that will be intensified by cold storm wave of moderate force expected to cross continent during week centering on January 2. Most severe storm period will be 8 to 16, as two severe storm waves cross continent well to the south during weeks centering on 9 and 14; lowest temperatures of month will not come during the period of severe storms but will be expected near 25, 18 and 5, in order as named. Moderate storms will be expected to center on 21, accompanied and followed by the most prolonged cold wave of month; mild storms will center on 29. Most precipitation of month will be expected 10 to 15 and near 2, 22 and 30, falling as described above, but not missing any large area of North America. As stated before in these bulletins, when spring planting season 1930 arrives, I will expect ample subsoil moisture in practically every spot on the continent and in some sections too much moisture before and during planting season and time for cultivation, but as season advances, moisture will disappear very fast from a large part of continent. Warmest periods of January are expected to center on 14, 9 and 29, in order as given. Very little good outdoor weather will be expected during the month in Canada and northern half of U. S., and storms centering on

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Most of them are gone today, that great army of educators that was with us Thursday and Friday scattered to the corners of the state, but with them went a mighty fine appreciation of New Castle for the way the Pennsylvania State Educational association convention was handled. It was just another indication of the way New Castle does things when she is interested and the succeeding convention cities will be pressed to stay up around the standard set here.

Rather a coincidence but New Castle was into the convention more than just holding it here. A former New Castle man, W. Lee Gilmore was elected president, the New Castle superintendent, Dr. C. C. Green, was elected second vice president and another former New Castle man Dr. Ben G. Graham, was chairman of the important Resolutions committee.

It can be truthfully said that Sheep Hill turned out the president of the P. S. E. A. for next year, for President Gilmore was the principal of the Terrace avenue school for some years.

As for the hospitality of New Castle folks during the convention, the delegates left here firmly believing that the well known southern hospitality was merely a shadow of what was done here. Seriously, these men and women who came to the convention are thoroughly sold on the idea of New Castle as a convention city.

And I can't help but believe that any city that can bring all those delegates here, house them, provide adequate quarters for the holding of the convention and do it all easily is considerable of a city.

And when the bouquets are being passed out, figure on one for each of the school teachers of the New Castle system. No superintendent ever had heartier co-operation from his staff than did Dr. Green and the success of the actual carrying out of the convention goes back in a large measure to the men and women in the schools of New Castle. They did a remarkable job, with particular emphasis upon the exhibits in Senior high school.

These captured the fancy of every delegate who saw them. President Foster compared them to a national exhibit. Secretary Kelley said there never was anything like it in the state's history of P. S. E. A. conventions and the body of the delegates went away believing that there must be a lot of super-teachers in this city.

As for the roaming it was confined to such a restricted area that little can be talked about here but the convention.

Hope none of the teachers were frightened when they left town last night. Every road was guarded by state police looking for the slayers of Brady Paul and it is a matter of deep regret that they weren't captured.

All of us are for law and order, but a short trial and a hot seat would be the proper thing for these arch fiends.

Its age is a private matter

It is very difficult to discover, by its appearance, how old a Lincoln is. Lincoln believes in making automobiles so beautiful that they are always modern — so durable that they simply won't wear out. The age of a Lincoln is no one's concern — least of all its owner's. On the boulevards a Lincoln of last season and the newest model share honors equally with Lincolns years older than either.

So fine is this car that a year or so of use does not perceptibly detract from any of its splendid qualities. Lincoln owners are often men who can, and do, provide the best professional care for their cars. Sometimes such well-kept cars are available at very attractive prices from Lincoln dealers. The wisdom of investing in such a motor car is quite evident, and shrewd buyers are quick to take advantage of the opportunity.

A few such Lincolns are now to be seen on our floor. Every one is in perfect mechanical condition. We are always glad to demonstrate them to you without the slightest obligation. Drop in today.

bon mot. It seems that a young fellow had given up the study of the ministry. Asked why he had done so he said that he had promised his father that he wouldn't go into politics.

With three more days left of 1929 it's about time to get out those resolutions and dust them off with the idea of using them again. Most people get a lot of mileage out of the same resolutions.

Brady Paul was a credit to the service, a gentleman and an officer, courteous and efficient and his untimely death is a matter of the deepest regret to everybody who knew him or came in contact with him.

The Flat Tire

The man who goes without a bank account is like the man who takes a trip on a flat tire. He ruins his tire and doesn't go far.

Plenty of air in a good tire and plenty of money in a good bank will last you long and take you far.
